A new dimension in packaging printing:

VARIOMAN is the name given to the newly conceived packaging printing press from manroland web systems. manroland web systems has created a technology platform which combines the benefits of varied technologies and processes while specifically avoiding the weak points inherent in other technologies and simultaneously providing top customer benefits. The pilot press is an offset gravure hybrid press, which prints foils and provides the proven core competences of the Augsburg printing system like mature design, system integration and service and maintenance packages. This new packaging printing press, the VARIOMAN f:line, was presented before numerous customers and interested parties from around the globe from 27th of February until 1st of March in an open House event organized in Augsburg.

manroland web systems and Goss intend to combine:

manroland web systems and Goss International's printing press business, both manufacturers and service providers of web offset printing systems for newspapers, commercial products and packaging are planning to combine their complementary businesses. The combined company will benefit from the companies' complementary geographic footprints, create extensive synergies, ensure long-term viability, and provide value-oriented solutions, especially in the area of aftermarket services. The merger is expected to be completed by the middle of 2018. The Contiweb business of Goss International
